Confederation.

ada are concerned Confederation is settled. The House of Commons composed of 181 members, have passed the terms by a majority of eighteen; and the Senate with its seventy-two members have passed the address with a majority of seventeen. All that now remains to be done, is for the Queen to issue an Order in Council declaring British Columbia to be united with the Dominion, and for the Governor-General of Canada, and the Governor of this Colony to proclaim the Union. It has been intimated that an act of the Imperial Parliament instead of an Order in Council, may be deemed advisable in order to do away with al doubts on the subject of the Union; but whatever course may be adopted, as a anatter of policy, it is quite clear from "the British America Act 1867" that an Order in Council is all that is required. By June the Order in Council ought to be made, and arrive here; and we presix years after the quescion of Confeder-ation was first raised in the Vancouver Island Legislature, and four years after it had passed the Legislative Council on 1867, we shall become an integral part of the Dominion. We are glad the great work is nearly accomplished; and we congratulate the people of this country in their noble perseverance in the good cause. The question of Confederation was first raised under Gov. Kennedy's administration, next in Gov. Seymour's, and we hope, it will be completed under Gov. Musgrave's. But to neither of these personages are the public indebted for this great measure. Neither are they under any obligation either to the officials high or low, or to some other parties who have been figuring recently as great Confederates. The people, on the con-trary, were the pith and substance the metive power that has brought Confederation to a successful issue. It is true the Canadian Government right loyally assisted in carrying out their wishes. Without their assent, as a matter of course, nothing could have been done. But what they have done has been done well and liberally, and when their authority shall have extended to the Pacific there will not be a dissentient voice, but it will be met with an universal welcome. In a few months, Confederation, or agitation respecting it, will be forgotten, and British Columbians will be a self-governing people. They will not only have to dest with local questions, but with all that concerns the territory that will form the Dominion. It will doubtless be sometime before we shall free ourselves from those habits of thought peculiar to a country so isolated politically as ours. But as a progressive member of who wish to SELL THEIR PRODUCE for CASH at the ticipate being behind the most advanced of the Eastern Provinces in political progress,-and will be fully prepared for the next great political event-the independence of British America.
